Also, making sure the all the professor know proper protocol and procedure when working in the writing center. Also, just making sure there is checks and balances and separation of powers to make sure there is quality assurance for the students because a lot of students are not aware of the writing center workshops because not every division is synced or gets along with each other on campus.	5/27/2018 6:51 PM

9	I do not use the center. The last time I used the center was years ago to be sure I had done my works cited correctly. The helper would not tell me if I had done my works cited page correctly or not. They just kept trying to use the Socratic method but frankly, that is not appropriate when the student is asking "did I do this APA style works cited page correctly?" Socratic method is not helpful in this situation.	5/25/2018 11:18 AM

2	I was thrilled by the intentional and personal feel of the writing center. It was neat for me to take my work in to a variety of instructors some of whom I have never taken classes yet, and learn unique and beneficial techniques from each. I plan on making many more visits to the writing center as I could see first hand the improvement on my grades.	6/3/2018 4:05 PM
3	The Writing Center and all personnel associated with it should be praised for their work. They've been invaluable in making sure I had written the best papers possible. 38	Making sure the students are aware of the writing center writing contest in advance and not last minute. Making sure students actually get help from the professors in the writing center so the students just don't waste their time in there. Actually get some feedback suggestions like getting our papers written all over. Teach us how to print out comments from turnitin.com and request to have a printer that has double-sided printing to save paper like the one Pathways to Teaching has and the one the First Year Support Center has as well. 51	I generally get really good grades on my papers, and the library serves as a quiet place to draft them just as well as the writing center, so I don't really see myself visiting it any time soon. However, I do appreciate the fact that the writing center exists, and I want it to keep existing for those who do need the kind of care and attention of a one-on-one session with an English professor. Thank you for providing it! (And who knows! Maybe in the future I'll need it too.)	5/25/2018 10:39 AM
